Information Sessions

Why we do what we do?

Since 1968, Chrysalis: An Alberta Society for Citizens with Disabilities has provided personalized services and support to help adults with developmental disabilities achieve enriched lives as they pursue their personal goals and actively participate in employment and volunteer opportunities and recreational activities.

While we're excited about our next 50 years, our immediate future includes implementation of a Human Centered Design program that focuses on facilitating our individuals to discover, develop and use their talents to become the best version of themselves. This new evolutionary process ties in with our motto: Change, Growth and Opportunity.

Chrysalis - A Brief History

Parents and community members realized that adults with disabilities deserved equal opportunities to contribute to their communities. In 1968, Chrysalis began as a Canadian centennial project under the University of Alberta's direction. One of the first of its kind in the world—an agency that planned for training adults with developmental disabilities to produce manufactured goods using automated machinery, Chrysalis offered individuals alternatives to staying in school or being inactive in their residential settings.

Today, Chrysalis continues to advocate community inclusion and uses a human-centered approach in delivering personalized services to assist thousands of people with disabilities.

In 2018, Chrysalis celebrated its 50th anniversary of serving the Edmonton area and its 30th anniversary of serving the Calgary area.

Chrysalis is a registered not-for-profit charitable organization. Our registration number is 108200049 RR0001.
